

42 "I THINK OF THEE" *

I think of thee
Through all the livelong day, and in my dreams
Thy image brightens all my way with sunny gleams,
When thinkest thou of me?

Wilt thou, too, think of me,
That our two hearts may mingle into one,
And our two lives in one calm current run?
Then, dear one, think of me.

* A quote from part of the poem - taken from The Lost life of Horatio Alger, Jr. by Gary Scharnhorst with Jack Bales.
Indiana University Press, 1985. p. 28.

Sources:

Boston Transcript, September 10, 1853.
The Lost Life of Horatio Alger, Jr., 1985.